Food and Nutrition Bulletin - Editorial Policy

Editorial office:
Food and Nutrition Bulletin
Michelle Badash, Managing Editor
HNRC -711 Washington St. - Mezzanine
Boston, MA, 02111, USA
E-mail: FNB@inffoundation.org
New submissions only: fnbsubmissions@inffoundation.org

Subscriptions:
Nevin Scrimshaw International Nutrition Foundation
HNRC- 711 Washington St. - Mezzanine
Boston, MA, 02111, USA
E-mail: fnbsubscriptions@inffoundation.org

The Food and Nutrition Bulletin (FNB), established in 1978, is published quarterly by the Nevin Scrimshaw International Nutrition Foundation. As of January 2011, please note that the FNB transitioned from a print-based journal to a web-based journal, and is available at: www.foodandnutritionbulletin.org and http://www.ingentaconnect.com/content/nsinf/fnb.

All correspondence concerning the content of the Bulletin, comments, news, and notices, as well as requests for reprint permission should be sent to the Managing Editor at FNB@inffoundation.org.

Mission. The FNB is intended to make available policy analyses, state-of-the-art summaries, and original scientific articles relating to multidisciplinary efforts to alleviate the problems of hunger and malnutrition in the developing world. It is not intended for the publication of scientific articles of principal interest only to individuals in a single discipline or within a single country or region. The FNB is also a vehicle for notices of forthcoming international meetings that satisfy the above criteria and for summaries of such meetings.

Additionally, the FNB also may serve as a principal outlet for the publication of reports of working groups and activities of other nonprofit organizations that are working to alleviate hunger and malnutrition in developing countries.

Submissions. Unsolicited manuscripts of articles of the type published in this and previous issues may be sent via email to the Managing Editor at fnbsubmissions@inffoundation.org. We do not accept hard copy submissions. Figures and tables must also be submitted electronically. Authors must confirm that all submissions are original work, and have not been published or submitted to any other publication.
Content: Any disciplinary or conceptual approach relevant to problems of world hunger and malnutrition is welcome, and controversy over some of the articles is anticipated. Letters to the Editor are encouraged and will be printed if judged to have an adequate basis and to be of sufficient general interest.

Also of interest are “Short Communications,” defined as papers that explore a topic with the customary scientific rigor but that do not need extensive analysis and discussion of the data or that have useful information that is not sufficient for a full article. These would be identified as such at the beginning of each article.

Peer review. The FNB is a peer-reviewed journal. FNB editors initially review each new submission, and if acceptable, send out the manuscripts to at least two experienced and knowledgeable peer reviewers.

Once comments are received from peer reviewers, the FNB editors and editor-in-chief make a final decision regarding publication. At this stage, the corresponding author may be asked to make certain revisions based on peer reviewer suggestions to be accepted for publication. If a manuscript is not accepted for publication, the corresponding author will receive a letter from the editor which will include an explanation for the decision.

Page charges. The FNB has a page charge of US$120.00 per printed page for unsolicited original research articles. (One printed page in the FNB is equivalent to approximately 3 double-spaced manuscript pages, or an estimated 960 words, excluding graphics.)

Page charges do not apply to solicited articles. Authors contributing to special issues and supplements are not responsible for page charges.

Waivers: Authors from developing countries who do not have support to cover page charges may request a page charge waiver form, to be completed and submitted when a manuscript has been accepted for publication. Each waiver request will be decided on a case-by-case basis by FNB editors. Articles acknowledging major financial support or from authors in industrialized countries will not be eligible for waivers. It is expected that authors will include publication costs when applying for research grants, so authors who publish regularly in the FNB should not expect to receive more than one page charge waiver.

Disclaimer. It is expressly understood that articles published in the Bulletin do not necessarily represent the views of the FNB or the Nevin Scrimshaw International Nutrition Foundation, which publishes the FNB. The views expressed and the accuracy of the information on which they are based are the responsibility of the authors. Some articles in the FNB are reports of various international committees and working groups and represent the consensus of the individuals involved; whether or not they also represent the opinions or policies of the sponsoring organizations is expressly stated.

Updated October 2014